

Before we implement transactions having significant tax implications, we often seek input and review from leading external tax advisors, and do not undertake tax positions which management determines